10. Strength of the manuscript

This manuscript aims to identify critical factors to evaluate the value of E - SCM in the palm oil industry by using resource-based view (RBV) as the underlying theory. It utilised a quantitative research method by having 200 questionnaire respondents as primary data in related industry in the Musi Banyu asin (Muba) district in South Sumatra province. The data were analysed by employed CFA (Confirmatory Factor Analysis). Overall, this study has a clear and systematic flow and results. Although, there should be a major writing revision to sharpen the analysis and adjust to good academic journal writing.

11. Weakness of the manuscript

This manuscript should have a major writing revision to address its weaknesses as follows:

1. In abstract, there are some notes:

a. Some words are unnecessary in capital, i.e. "harmony " and "business", all should be in lower case except those begin a sentence or part of a title.

b. Every abbreviation (abbrv.) should be introduced in front before being used, for example in abstract information technology (IT) – before using this abbrv. in other sentences. In addition, the term E-SCM in abstract must be introduced in the first hand.

c. The authors are recommended to use native proof-reader to ensure the grammar of the manuscript. A few notes: "to investigates" should be "to investigate" (abstract).

d. The writing of sentences was unfinished "This research reveals that IT human resources and IT infrastructure are the critical factors and capability in to operate E-SCM effectively and....”

2. In introduction, the writing is not consistent : “...of e-scm..”; mistyping “...Azmiyati and Hidayat (2017 examine...” the close-bracket should end the citation.

3. Table 1. Show – should be “shows”; wording in the first column should be consistent in capita format.

4. Figure 1 – some words have to be translated.

5. Table 3 – should be revised on

a. Female or male, instead of man or woman

b. 46 – 50 years old

c. Why the supplier formatted in italic?

6. Table 7 – set the format for repeated row for the table’s header if the table is separated into two pages.

Regarding the organisation,

1. In abstract, authors should explain the method data collection and analysis (i.e. number of samples) for its quantitative research methods. In addition, any novelty or contribution of this research is better to be mentioned.

2. A part of the objective that has been well written, a research question is still essential in introduction.

3. Finding and discussions should be enriched by exploring the academic and practical contribution upon this research’s outcome, not merely interpreting the data analysis’s result. Some recommendation for the industry is encouraged to add particular contribution from this manuscript.

12. Choose one of the following recommendations:

Major revision required

13. Other Comments:
